There will be NO new homework coming home this Wednesday. Yay! I thought a break over spring break would be perfect!☺.

Don't forget to keep reading during this last week in March. A big thank you, again, parents, for encouraging your child to participate in Reading Month. I am so proud of EVERY ONE of my students for taking on the challenge of reading the extra amount this past month. You should also be very proud of your child who earned the Special Event. We should be hearing all the details soon. I'm sure it will be a lot of fun! Finally, make sure to turn in that last reading log this THURSDAY!!!!

Thank you so much, Parents, for attending Parent/Teacher Conferences the last week. Believe it or not, it is one of my favorite times of the year. Although I have a couple of late nights, I truly enjoy getting together with you to discuss how wonderful your children are, and also how we can work together to help your children succeed. You have done amazing jobs already with them, and I can't thank you enough! We are going to finish the year strong, and I am very excited about it! Thank you, thank you, thank you for allowing me to share your precious children with you.

Thank you also, parents, for donating more books to our classroom library. The kids are so excited every time they find something new. What generosity you have shown to us!

Thank you again, parents, for all of your support. Call anytime if you have questions.
